

Jimmy Bracken

Titles: 1 Sources: 0 Stills: 1

Born: US

Doris Day's farewell film was a non-singing domestic would-be comedy much along the same lines as "The Brady Bunch", which hit TV screens the following year. Bracken played the second of Day's three sons (Richard Steele his younger brother) in a turbulent household not much becalmed when mom marries a widower with a teenage daughter. Neither of the boys plays any significant role in the film – they're simply there being mischievous in the background and stressing the need for a man about the house. Nothing else is known about him. He's not listed in The Moving Picture Boy.

After tipping yellow paint in the bath – the scamp

Source: Movieboys website

FILMOGRAPHY

Year	Age	Title	Role
68		WITH SIX YOU GET EGGROLL  with Richard Steele	as Mitch McClure (±10)