

Jade Caiegory

Titles: 1 Sources: 1 Stills: 5

Born:

Paraplegic from birth, but with a beautiful name in compensation, he had the misfortune to be cast in what was essentially a greedy merchandising ripoff of Spielberg's "E.T.". "MAC AND ME" was critically trounced, and rightly so, as an extended commercial for the McDonalds junk food chain, even though part of the proceeds went to children's charities. Caiegory, probably the only thing worth watching in it, made no other films so far as I'm aware.

Video Movie Guide 1993 review:

"Imagine the most product-friendly film ever made, one where even the title has commercial innuendo, and you have (Big) "MAC AND ME". To be fair, "MAC AND ME" stars the courageous Jade Category, a paraplegic wheelchair-bound since birth, and a share of the producer's nett profits will be donated to Ronald McDonald's Children's Charities. But the plot rips off everything in sight. Rated "PG" Turkey"

Front of house stills captions:

"Jade Category plays Eric, a young boy who is befriended by a little alien creature - Mac in "MAC AND ME" directed by Stewart Raffill and produced by R.J. Louis."

"Eric (Jade Category) makes friends with his new next door neighbour Debbie (Lauren Stanley) in "MAC AND ME", directed by Stewart Raffill and produced by R.J. Louis."

FILMOGRAPHY

Year	Age	Title	Role
19		MAC AND ME with Lauren Stanley, Danny Cooksey	as Eric Cruise, 10

with Lauren Stanley

