

Sem de Jong

Titles: 1 Sources: 1 Stills: 3

Born: Netherlands

In the custody battle drama “EEN STILLE LIEFDE” he was the glittering prize snatched from the mother’s clutches by the father (Cor van Rijn), whereupon the two desperadoes flee together across the low countries. If it was overly partisan to the father’s position, dozens of later TV movies and straight-to-video titles would redress that balance. Nothing further is known about him. He’s not listed in The Moving Picture Boy.

Speelfilm Encyclopedie review of “EEN STILLE LIEFDE”:

“With Frans Bromet as cameraman the story is very sensitively filmed of the divorced husband who kidnaps his small son, custody of whom is awarded to the mother. Weak point in the script is the one-sided view of the female characters in the story. Cor van Rijn performs splendidly, and so does the small boy Sam de Jong. In all its simplicity a strong drama. ***”

Source (and overleaf): indeterminate website

FILMOGRAPHY

Year	Age	Title	Role
77		EEN STILLE LIEFDE ("A Silent Love")	