The Moving Picture Boy entry:

“Alain – his surname sometimes spelt "Dekok", "Decock", etc – played on the professional stage, once as the divine emissary in "Waiting for Godot". His big screen chance came in "LE PETIT GARÇON DE L'ASCEN-SEUR", as a 14-year old lift-boy at a posh Monte Carlo hotel. With adult help, he wins a newspaper competition whose prize is a weekend in the same hotel's Royal Suite. He then makes rather an exhibition of himself. Alain was fine, but it led to nothing much. His career continued for a time in such films as "DIS-MOI QUI TUER" (65) and "L'ARMÉE DES OMBRES" (69).”
