

Nic Knight

Titles: 1 Sources: 0 Stills: 2

Born: UK ?; c1982

He was the obnoxious prince Horace of Brattenburg in Disney's period adventure "THE WHIPPING BOY". Resentful of his father's inattention, the arrogant Horace plays various mean pranks, knowing that a servant boy (Truan Munro) will have to take the punishment for him. However, when the two run away from the palace and are captured by highwaymen, the tables are turned and Horace, mistaken for the real whipping boy, is flogged in place of his master. An unappealing role, and Nic himself is no oil painting, but he carries off the part well enough, a sort of malign Peter Ustinov figure aged 12. Nothing else is known of him.

Soundly thrashed – and not a moment too soon – portly prince Horace has the indignity compounded by a mere gypsy woman massaging witchhazel into his martyred posterior (but off-camera, times being what they are).

Source (and overleaf): The Movie and TV Spanking Page

FILMOGRAPHY

Year	Age	Title	Role
94		THE WHIPPING BOY  with Truan Munro, Karen Salt	as prince Horace of Brattenburg, 12