

Jimmy Osmond

Titles: 1 Sources: 0 Stills: 9

Born: Utah

Youngest, but neither the most talented nor photogenic, of the Osmond brood who first came to fame as a barber-shop boy ensemble on "The Andy Williams Show", and later rose to the giddy heights of global teen stardom in competition with the likes of David Cassidy and The Jackson Five. Jimmy's contribution to that legacy was the astoundingly icky solo single "I'll Be Your Long-Haired Lover From Liverpool", which he performed as a palpitating cherub in a white Elvis jumpsuit. Jimmy joined the troupe after their parting of the ways with Andy Williams, but he did have a solo film appearance, (an opportunity his brother Donny never had) in the Tom Sawyerish vehicle "THE GREAT BRAIN", and inevitably he turns up in several TV documentaries about the Osmonds, for example "Osmond Family Values" and "Top 10 Teen Stars".

The indifferent quality frame grabs above and overleaf – source: The Movie and TV Spanking Page

If bottoms were brains, Jimmy would be an Einstein, clearly.

The Movie and TV Spanking Page comment on "THE GREAT BRAIN":

"A truly awful movie starring a young Jimmy Osmond. Here, young Jimmy has refused to tell schoolmaster Mr Standish who is responsible for a prank. Threatened with a paddling if he does not tell, he declares that not only will he not tell, but he won't take a paddling either. "We'll see about that!" declares Mr Standish, who puts the boy over his knee and gives him ten resounding whacks with the paddle. Our hero is unrepentant afterwards."

FILMOGRAPHY

Year	Age	Title	Role
78		THE GREAT BRAIN	in title role (?)