The Moving Picture Boy entry:

“Franco Rossi’s "AMICI PER LA PELLE" - known to the English-speaking public as "FRIENDS FOR LIFE" - is a remarkable, deeply-felt study of a schoolboy friendship: emotionally intense, but completely without sensuality. The extrovert Mario, son of a ceramic artist, befriends a new boy who arrives at his school: Franco, the shy, serious son of a diplomat. Theirs is a relationship of opposites, with Franco hopelessly vulnerable to Mario’s bouncy insensitivity. What finally shatters it is an act of spite by Mario, betraying a secret about Franco’s dead mother after his intellectual friend has, somewhat improbably, beaten him in a long-distance race.

Geronimo Meynier (born 5th July 1941) is brilliant as the attractive, affectionate but shallow Mario... But Andrea Sciré’s sweet-natured Franco carries the real charge of

"AMICI PER LA PELLE". It's a sad study in disillusionment, and his is a face that registers pride, diffidence and pain with perfect truthfulness. Sciré, rumoured to be a distant scion of the Bonaparte dynasty, never made another film."
