

Maurice Tauzin

Titles: 5      Sources: 1      Stills: 5

Born: USA

In "THE PIED PIPER" he plays a boy who sees his parents killed when a refugee column in WW2 France is strafed by German fighters. Struck deaf and dumb by shock, he's co-opted by Roddy McDowall and Peggy Ann Garner to their growing train of urchins. In one scene he tries single-handedly to beat off a troop of German motorbike troops, only showing what a poor sense of humour orphans have in such situations. His role as the boy king (American accent and all) in "THE BANDIT OF SHERWOOD FOREST" was only marginal – Robin Hood junior (Cornel Wilde) thwarts a plot by the regent to launch Maurice from a high window in Nottingham castle. Catch the last five minutes of the film and you've seen the best of him.

On the run with Monty Woolley in "THE PIED PIPER"

As King Henry III in "THE BANDIT OF SHERWOOD FOREST"

Source: Junior Film Annual 1946-47

FILMOGRAPHY

| Year | Age | Title                                                                | Role              |
|------|-----|----------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|
| 42   |     | THE PIED PIPER                                                       | as "Pierre"       |
|      |     | with Roddy McDowall, Peggy Ann Garner, Merrill Rodin, Fleurette Zama |                   |
| 44   |     | A SONG TO REMEMBER                                                   |                   |
| 45   |     | THE FIGHTING GUARDSMAN                                               |                   |
| 46   |     | THE BANDIT OF SHERWOOD FOREST                                        | as King Henry III |
| 47   |     | TARZAN AND THE HUNTRESS                                              |                   |
|      |     | with Johnny Sheffield                                                |                   |