TV Quick notes:

- “
- How do you talk to two different Dads? And get over missing your mum? And what's more, what do you do when you nearly blow up the house? Continuing the drama about kids at the sharp end of their folks' remarriage.
 - Jenny pleads for everyone to enjoy their last family holiday together, but the boys quickly become bored camping in the countryside. (Ages 10-15)”

[no listing in “The Golden Age of Children's Television”, “Halliwell's Television Companion”, “History of Television”, “Into the Box of Delights - a History of Children's Television”, “Television's Greatest Hits” or “25 Years of ITV - 1955-1980”]

No further information currently available. I'm always fascinated how programme-makers come by these arcane viewing-age guidelines. What makes this series, for example, unsuitable for 9 or 16-year olds? Methinks there's a mystery in it.

The later serial “Goggle Eyes” focussed on an adolescent daughter's antipathy to her mother's new sweetheart, and many similar situations will be found in the subject index under MATCHMAKER KIDS / MATCHBREAKER KIDS, although as television seeks diligently to reflect changing patterns in “family life”, such domestic situations are more often played out now as an incidental backdrop, rather than the focal “issue”. Children growing to maturity with both their natural parents is less and less the predominant norm.

See subject index also under CAMPING HOLIDAYS and SERIALISATIONS.
