The British Film Catalogue 1895-1985
 listing:

“Drama. Police pursue boy and halfcaste friend to Liverpool when they run away from cruel parents.”

The Sunday Times Guide to Movies on Television review:

“Films about sweet little children usually tend to get very mawkish. This one, written and directed by Jim O'Connolly, is an exception. A low-budget effort, it's about a search for a father. *”

No further information currently available. Godawful simpering title, whatever its merits as a film. Three years later Kim Smith turned up as one of Fagin's all-singing all-dancing boy pickpockets in "OLIVER!". Nothing else is known of Carl Gonzales.

See subject index under CRUELTY / NEGLECT / MALTREATMENT, POLICE / SOCIAL WORKERS and RUNAWAYS / STOWAWAYS.
